The diagram illustrates a two-stage sampling process. At the top, a large rectangle represents the 'Population (N)'. Inside this rectangle, a smaller rectangle represents the 'Sample (n)'. Within the 'Sample (n)' rectangle, there is a third, even smaller rectangle labeled 'Subsample (m)'. Arrows indicate the flow of the process: one arrow points from the 'Population (N)' to the 'Sample (n)', and another arrow points from the 'Sample (n)' to the 'Subsample (m)'.
