Good Morning!

Just a quick note to let MSDS users know that CEPI systems are running slowly today, and you will probably see files take longer than usual to get through upload and file validation. Our programming staff is working on the fix for the issue, and hopes to have the system back on its feet by day's end.

Since files are processing slowly, please don't re-submit files you've already sent, in hopes they will somehow 'jump the queue'. It won't work, and processing will just slow further from the repeat data.

The timing is (as always) bad, since today is the deadline to have your spring general collection data initially uploaded into the system. Keep in mind that you have until 3/26 (at 11:59 PM) to get your file in and certified. Hopefully, the system won't have too many more 'bad hair days', and we won't hold you up from getting certified.

Thanks for your patience!

Rob
