RECORD OF SERVICE

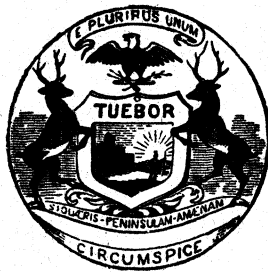

OF

Michigan Volunteers

IN THE

CIVIL WAR

Published by authority of the Senate and House of Representatives of the Michigan Legislature, under the direction of Brig. Gen. Geo. H. Brown, Adjutant General.

MICHIGAN HISTORICAL COMMISSION

In presenting this work to the public, we wish to acknowledge the painstaking, enthusiastic, and able efforts of Assistant Adjutant General, Col. George H. Turner, who, by long and most honorable military service, was especially fitted for the work of compiling this volume. To him is due our unbounded gratitude, and the full honor of these carefully prepared records.

INTRODUCTORY.

The compilation of the military history of each soldier of the Civil War (who was a resident of the State of Michigan at the time he enlisted), for publication and distribution has been the subject of controversy for years. The magnitude of such a work, together with the cost of publication, the exhaustive research required and the amount of clerical services necessary in its compilation, have been large factors in postponing, from time to time, the consideration of the subject.

To comply as far as possible with this demand an admirable history was prepared by Adjutant General John Robertson, a few years ago, entitled "Michigan in the War," and gratuitously distributed through the generosity of the state to the surviving soldiers of the war and to the families of those who perished. But this work was general in character, referring mostly to regimental organizations, and contained the military biography of commissioned officers only.

The enlisted men of the army who endured the hardships and suffered the perils of war considered it due themselves and their children that their names should appear of record in the archives of their country and their services noted, that future generations might know the honorable part their ancestors bore in the memorable conflict known as the Civil War: Such a record will ever be a source of patriotic pride to the soldier who did his duty whether he served in the ranks or in command of divisions or corps, and an inspiration to the youth of the country who must in the future assume the civic and military responsibilities of this grand republic.

At the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, Department of Michigan, held at Pontiac, June 11 and 12, 1902, the following resolution was passed unanimously:

"Resolved: That the Department of Michigan, Grand Army of the Republic, in encampment assembled, hereby request of the legislature and the Governor of Michigan that immediate provision be made for the publication of the record of the officers and enlisted men who served from this state during the Civil War in form substantially the same as those published by other states, notably New Hampshire, Connecticut and Ohio."

The Department Commander appointed a committee on legislation consisting of C. E. Foote, Kalamazoo, Col. Fred Schneider, Lansing, and Alfred Milnes, Coldwater. This committee drafted the following bill, which was passed by both houses of the legislature in the session of 1903, and was promptly signed by Governor Bliss.

The act is known as Act 147, Public Acts of 1903.

The first three sections of the Act are as follows, and the concluding sections refer to provisions of contracting for publication and auditing accounts.

The People of the State of Michigan enact:

Section 1. The Adjutant General shall, as soon as practicable after the passage of this act, prepare for publication an alphabetical regimental history of all soldiers and sailors who enlisted from and were credited to this state during the war of the rebellion. Such history shall contain the name, residence, date of enlistment, date of muster in, rank, promotion, wounds received, capture and imprisonment by the enemy, date of discharge, muster out or death, and such information as can be obtained from the records of this state, the war, navy and other departments of the Federal Government, or other authentic sources, as will correct or complete the records, making as far as practicable a complete and concise military history of each soldier or sailor so serving; prefacing each volume of such records appropriately, with a concise general history of the organization therein named. He shall direct the preparation and compilation of such records for publication in forty-three, forty-four, forty-five, or forty-six volumes, assigning as far as practicable one volume to each of the following organizations and groups of organizations, viz.: One volume to each regimental infantry organization and reorganization, numbered from First to Thirtieth regiment; one volume each to First regiment of Michigan Engineers and Mechanics, First regiment Michigan Sharpshooters, and First regiment Michigan colored troops; one volume to the fourteen Michigan Batteries of Light Artillery; one volume to Gen. George A. Custer's Cavalry Brigade, consisting of the First, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh regiments of Michigan cavalry; one volume to each of the Second, Third, Fourth, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh Michigan cavalry regiments; and one volume to contain all other miscellaneous organizations and detachments enlisted in this state and serving in Michigan and other state organizations; and one volume to contain a general alphabetical index of all names mentioned in the different volumes constituting the entire edition, showing in what organization or volume each name in the index may be found, for the convenient reference of the public in library sets, which index volume is herewith limited to two hundred copies. For this purpose the Adjutant General is authorized to employ such extra clerical assistance and procure such blanks and stationery as may be necessary in the preparation, compilation, comparing and proof reading, necessary to secure historical and typographical accuracy.

Section 2. The distribution of said volumes when published shall be made under the supervision of the Adjutant General, in the same general manner now adopted for the distribution of "Michigan in the War," under section three, act two hundred forty-eight, public acts of eighteen hundred eighty-seven. One regimental volume to the applicant of the organization in which he served as follows: Any person who served in any Michigan regiment, battery, company or detachment during the Civil War, and has been honorably discharged, or any person who served in any regiment, battery or company from any other state, or in the regular army, or in the navy, properly accredited to the State of Michigan, and has been honorably discharged, or if such person be dead, then his widow if living, or if she be dead, then his father if living, if he be dead, then the mother of any such person, or if she be dead, then to his eldest child, if any there be; and any such person who is still in the service, shall be entitled to receive one copy of said work, on application and identification to the Adjutant General, and if the application for such copy be not made in person by depositing with the Adjutant General necessary postage to cover the expense of sending such book. Also complete sets to adjutants general of other states, and to state and United States public libraries upon application, and to such other libraries in this state as the Governor may approve, and may be purchased by any other persons who may apply at cost of publication.

Section 3. So soon as the work of preparation and compilation of the historical records herein provided for shall have progressed sufficiently near completion to enable printers and binders to make accurate estimates of the cost of publication, the Adjutant General shall serve a written notification of that fact on the Board of State Auditors; upon such notification, at the earliest practicable moment, the Board of State Auditors is hereby directed to solicit sealed bids for the publication, printing and binding of forty-five thousand volumes of "A Record of Michigan Soldiers and Sailors in the War of the Rebellion, Eighteen Hundred Sixty-one to Eighteen Hundred Sixty-Five," and give public notice of the time and place for receiving such bids and the requirements of the contract in accordance with this act by publishing the same in such paper or papers, and for such a period as will in the judgment of the board bring the subject to the attention of the several prominent publishing houses in this state: Provided, That the cost of such work complete shall not exceed fourteen thousand dollars for the printing, binding and delivery of the entire edition herein provided for; and the standard of excellence in quality of material, style of binding, typography and style of printing shall be equal to that used by the state of Massachusetts in its recent publication of "Massachusetts' Soldiers and Sailors of the Revolutionary War," copies of which are now on file in the Adjutant General's office of this state: Provided, further, That the apportionment of the copies of the different regimental volumes of the edition of forty-five thousand volumes herein provided for, shall be in the same relative proportion as the total enrollment of the organizations represented in any single volume bears to the total enrollment of the entire edition as provided for in this act; for which purpose the Adjutant General shall direct the preparation of, and furnish the Board of State Auditors with a comprehensive table of data, showing the total enrollment of the organization, and the total number of printed pages intended for each volume, and the apportionment of the total number of copies to each of such volumes, for the guidance of bidders for the contract of publishing such work.

Immediately upon the approval of the act by the Governor, the Adjutant General commenced active preparations to compile the work as provided for in the bill. No state has been more generous than Michigan in trying to secure full and complete historical military data of her sons, who patriotically volunteered to defend the integrity of their country, and probably the records in the military department are as accurate and complete as any like records of any state in the Union. Yet with all the care and research that has been made, there are individual histories that are deficient in some particulars, owing to the fact that the returns from which they were copied were written in the field during active and protracted campaigns, when great battles were fought, and the movement of troops continued incessantly night and day, circumstances incompatible with accuracy, completeness and legibility, and by officers who succeeded suddenly in command by the death of their predecessors. The greater number who possessed the information desired have been removed by death, and their silent lips can never complete the unwritten history of their comrades.

It was sometimes impossible in the stirring times of war for commanding officers to give authentic and final history of men who disappeared in a great battle, as in many cases the bodies of the dead could not be found, and if possession of the field was yielded to the enemy the fate of those who were made prisoners of war could only, if ever, be learned through unreliable Confederate sources.

For such heroes who died for their country and who sleep in nameless graves their epitaph is inscribed in this history as "Missing in action." A more honorable or heroic epitaph could not be penned. Thousands of the Union dead have been removed by the Government from the field where they fell, and their bodies have been placed in national cemeteries, beautified and adorned, as the mausoleum of the nation's defenders with appropriate monuments at their resting places.

In order to complete some of the records of the Adjutant General's Office, which is the custodian of all the field returns of the Civil War, Governor Bliss made a request of the Secretary of War, seconded by Senators Burrows and Alger, asking that the incomplete, individual records of this office be completed, upon presentation by the Adjutant General, provided the War Department was in possession of the facts desired. For reasons which seemed sufficient to the Secretary of War, the request was denied.

To supplement the records of this office so as to make each individual history complete as far as possible, blanks were prepared and sent to all the Grand Army Posts of the state, with the request that the names of all Michigan soldiers in the Post and vicinity be returned to the Adjutant General stating the residence, if living, and, if dead, the date of death and place of burial.

Three hundred out of the three hundred and sixty Posts of the state responded, and the data gathered from these reports have been added to the official history shown by the records of this office. Without doubt there are some inaccuracies in these reports, but the majority of them are correct and will enable many ex-soldiers to locate their comrades, if living, and to know their resting places if dead.

A request was also made of each superintendent of the eighty national cemeteries to forward to the Adjutant General the names of all Michigan soldiers buried in such cemeteries. A gratifying response was received, and these reports have been carefully compiled and added to the history of the soldier. These reports of the superintendents of national cemeteries tell a mournful story. The superintendent of the National Cemetery at Andersonville, Ga., reports the names of six hundred and forty-seven Michigan soldiers buried there, victims of Andersonville prison. There is scarcely a national cemetery in the United States that does not contain the bodies of Michigan soldiers, and a number of them as many as the cemetery at Andersonville, Ga.

Near the close of the war there were many recruits at depots awaiting transportation to join regiments at the front, but when it was found their services would not be needed, many returned home without the formality of a muster out, and their final disposition was incomplete, and in many such cases shows "no further record."

In the compilation of this work no pains have been spared and no research of the almost numberless field returns made forty years ago, has seemed too arduous to make the soldiers' record absolutely complete if there were material existing to make this possible. That inaccuracies will appear is unavoidable from the nature of the work. The inaccuracies are not the result of careless clerical work in the Adjutant General's office, but are due to the hasty compilation of returns in the field, where names were misspelled and where the name of a soldier is spelled differently in the muster-in and muster-out rolls.

In cases where the name could not be verified as the correct one both are published. When inaccuracies appear in the record if the soldier will send his discharge papers to the Adjutant General, the corrections will be made in the official records of the office and the discharge papers promptly returned. It scarcely occurred to the officers who made their official returns to the different departments that forty years after the conflict, an individual history of each soldier who participated would be written. Had such been known then, the meagre and scant accounts of skirmishes, battles and sieges—many of them destined to be of world-wide fame—would have been extended and written out fully giving a comprehensive history of individuals, companies and regiments, a history that would be a priceless heritage today and to future generations.

The hardships of a campaign, the duties exacted night and day, the constant attention to matters of vital importance, are not conducive to literary efforts of biography or general history. It is pathetic to know that thousands upon thousands of Union soldiers who participated in many of the most desperate battles of the Civil War, have no records of such battles to their credit in the official reports. A limited number were fortunate enough to have their names recorded by their officers as participating in such engagements.

Whenever the official records have mentioned the battles in which the soldier fought, or wounds that he received, or promotions made, or any gallant and meritorious service, such record has been carefully noted and attached to the soldier's history. At the commencement of the work it was found that many soldiers saw service in more than one regiment, and as the appropriation contemplated but one volume to each man, the entire history of the soldier has been compiled under his name and placed in the volume where he served longest. The primary object of the whole work has been to group the comrades who served in the same regiment, with names arranged in alphabetical order, and present him with the volume containing his own military history and the history of those with whom he served.

The soldiers who enlisted for three years and after serving two years re-enlisted in the field for "three years or during the war," have the distinctive and honorable title of "veteran" placed after their names.

Careful enumeration has been made of the total enrollment of each regiment, together with the list of casualties.

The work of compiling these individual histories has been long and arduous, but it has been one of gratification and satisfaction to record the gallant deeds of Michigan men who contributed so gloriously to the unity and perpetuity of the Union.

First Light Artillery.

It has been deemed expedient in compiling the history of this regiment to place each battery by itself.

The companies of a regiment of infantry or cavalry usually serve together as an organization, but the character of a regiment of artillery is such that the different batteries are seldom, if ever, assembled as one organization.

The batteries composing this regiment were assigned to separate armies in the field and took a conspicuous part in the western army and the army of the Potomac.

The Colonel of the regiment was Cyrus O. Loomis, formerly Captain of Battery A, commissioned Colonel Oct. 8, 1862, and the field officers of the regimental organization were as follows:

Lieutenant Colonel Luther F. Hale, Lieutenant Colonel William H. Ross, Major Josiah W. Church, Major John J. Ely, Major Albert F. R. Arndt, Major John C. Schuetz.

A brief history of each battery of the regiment, with the military history of each member, is given in this volume.

For some reason unexplained, the field returns of the batteries composing the regiment were not made as full and complete as the cavalry and infantry organizations. The records of the Adjutant General's department show but meager returns for batteries that took conspicuous parts in many of the hardest fought battles of the war. The history of these organizations cannot be written as their merits and distinguished services deserve, because such history was not reported at the time it was made.

BATTERY A.

The initial organization of Battery A was a company at Coldwater, known as the "Coldwater Light Artillery," well drilled and equipped, and the officers of the company tendered their services to the government April 22, 1861. Their services were accepted by General Wool of the U. S. A., and the battery was ordered to Fort Wayne at Detroit, where it reported without delay, with equipments and horses for six guns.

The War Department declined to approve General Wool's acceptance of the battery, but permission was finally granted, provided the officers and men would enlist for three years. The battery was then reorganized upon the three years' enlistment plan, and was mustered into service May 28, 1861, with the following officers:

Captain, Cyrus O. Loomis of Coldwater. First Lieutenant, Otis H. Gillam of Coldwater. First Lieutenant, Charles A. Edmonds of Quincy. Second Lieutenant, Roland Root of Coldwater, and Second Lieutenant, Robert G. Chandler of Coldwater.

The battery left Detroit May 31, 1861, with six brass six-pounders, for Cincinnati, Ohio, and went into camp at Camp Dennison. It was soon ordered to West Virginia and took transports at Marietta, Ohio, for Parkersburg, W. Va., and then by rail to Clarksburg, where an attack was expected from the confederate General Wise.

During the month of July the battery was constantly on the march, except when engaged with the enemy at Middle Fork Bridge and Rich Mountain, where it did great execution by its splendid marksmanship. The battery was supplied at this time with six ten-pounder Parrotts, and the brass pieces were turned in to the Ordnance Department.

The battery took part in the engagement at Greenbriar and afterward occupied Elkwater and Huttonsville, and in December was ordered to Louisville, Ky., where, in the advance of General Buell's army, it marched upon Bowling Green. When the battery arrived the enemy was making preparations to evacuate the city, and were loading trains with all kinds of stores to prevent their falling into the hands of the Union troops. A few well directed shells from the battery disabled one of the engines and made it impossible for the enemy to move the other trains in the rear and they were set on fire and destroyed, although five engines were saved and were taken by the Union forces. The battery was serving at this time in General Mitchell's command and was highly complimented for the excellent marksmanship displayed, as the General was an eye witness of the incident.

The battery returned to Nashville, where it was engaged in scouting and chasing the confederate General John Morgan, and was then divided into detachments operating in northern Alabama until August, 1862, when it was united and formed a part of General Buell's army in his march upon Louisville.

On the 8th of October the battery took a prominent part in the battle of Perryville, Ky., and saved the right wing of General Buell's army from disaster. The battle was opened at daylight by an artillery duel which lasted for more than an hour, completely silencing the enemy's guns and strewing the ground with the killed and wounded.

In the afternoon the battery occupied a position which was considered the key of the field and was ordered to hold it at all hazards. The battery was without adequate support, but double shooting the guns with canister, the officers and men stood by their pieces and repelled five charges, the enemy at times coming near the muzzles of the guns. As desperate as their charges were, the fury of the enemy could not withstand the devouring fire that swept the field and converted it literally into a harvest of death. The battery won a reputation here for daring courage and coolness in battle that spread through the entire army. It was known as "Loomis' Battery" from that day to the present. It gained its enviable name at a loss of 18 men killed or wounded, and more than 30 horses were killed or disabled.

After the battle of Perryville the battery was engaged in scouting, and many skirmishes in Tennessee, and in November returned to Nashville.

When General Rosecrans moved upon Murfreesboro, Battery A formed a part of the Union forces and made a brilliant reputation at Stone River by desperate fighting and an indomitable will to remain masters of the field, when the right wing was crushed and the Union army driven back for two miles.

When the enemy emerged from the cedars in overwhelming numbers they had high hopes that victory was within their grasp, but Battery A secured a commanding position and poured such a destructive fire of canister into their ranks that it swept the field clear of the foe, and though a number of attempts were made to drive the battery from its position, each one signally failed. The battery suffered a loss of 22 men killed, wounded and missing in its action, and 40 horses.

After the battle of Stone River the battery remained at Murfreesboro until June 24, 1863, when it joined in the march with the army of General Rosecrans for Chattanooga, Tenn. It had a sharp engagement with the enemy at Hoover's Gap, Tenn., and crossed the Tennessee River at Bridgeport, Ala., then Raccoon Mountain into Lookout Valley in September.

It served in the First Brigade, Baird's Division, Fourteenth Corps, in the battle of Chickamauga on the 19th of September and was nearly annihilated. It had scarcely taken position when the enemy charged the Union lines in overwhelming numbers, driving everything before them, and though the guns were double shotted and fired as fast as they could be loaded until the enemy was at the muzzle of the pieces, the battery was obliged to surrender, the commander, Van Pelt, lying dead beside his guns, and 26 men killed, wounded or missing, and 50 horses killed or disabled.

Five of the guns were captured by the enemy, but Lieutenant Bachman succeeded in saving his piece by hauling it by hand from the field, as it was partially screened by the woods during the engagement. Before the close of the war the five captured guns were recaptured and returned to the battery.

After the battle of Chickamauga the battery was stationed at Chattanooga, and in January, 1864, 22 of the members re-enlisted. The battery never took the field again, but did duty in the forts about Chattanooga. It returned to Michigan in July and was mustered out and paid at Jackson, July 28, 1865.

While in service it had encountered the enemy at Rich Mountain, W. Va., July 11, 1861; Elkwater, W. Va., September 11, 12, 1861; Green Briar, W. Va., October 3, 1861; Bowling Green, Ky., February 14, 1862; Perryville, Ky., October 8, 1862; Bridgeport, Ala., April 29, 1862; Gunther's Landing, Ala., May 15, 1862; Athens, Ala., May 29, 1862; Whitesboro, Ala., June, 1862; Stone River, Tenn., December 31, 1862, January 1, 2, 3, 1863; Hoover's Gap, Tenn., June 25, 1863; Chickamauga, Ga., September 19, 20, 1863; Lookout Mountain, November, 1863; Mission Ridge, Tenn., November 25, 1863.

BATTERY B.

Battery B was organized at Grand Rapids and mustered into service Nov. 26, 1861. The officers at organization were as follows:

Captain, William H. Ross. First Lieutenant, William S. Bliss. First Lieutenant, Albert R. F. Arndt. Second Lieutenant, Cuthbert W. Laing, all of Detroit.

The Battery left Grand Rapids December 17, 1861, and received its guns after arriving in the field. Its first engagement with the enemy was at Pittsburg Landing, Tenn., April 6, 1862, where it made a gallant fight but was overpowered by three regiments of confederate Infantry, urged forward by General Beauregard in person. After a severe struggle four guns of the Battery fell into the hands of the enemy and nearly all of the officers and fifty men were taken prisoners. One section under command of Lieutenant Laing escaped capture and served in the siege of Corinth in May and in the battle of Corinth the following October.

The officers and men taken prisoners at Pittsburg Landing were exchanged and under command of Captain Ross, left Detroit Dec. 25, 1862, for Columbus, Ky. The following January it was joined by the section that had been on duty at Corinth and the men who had escaped capture, and again was furnished with guns, horses and equipments.

In December, 1863, the Battery was at Pulaski, Tenn., where forty-eight members re-enlisted and received veteran furloughs.

In April, 1864, the Battery commenced a march through Huntsville, Bridgeport, Ala., Chattanooga, Tenn., Resaca, Ga., where it was engaged with the enemy but sustained no serious loss. The Battery had a number of contacts with the enemy on the march to Atlanta, Ga., and on the 13th of November left Atlanta for the long march with General Sherman's army for Savannah, Ga.

At Griswold, Ga., the Battery had an engagement with the enemy and sustained a loss of seven wounded. It took part in the capture of Savannah, Ga., and entered that city on the 21st of December.

The Battery participated in the march through the Carolinas, engaging the enemy at a number of different places and arrived at Raleigh, N. C., April 14, 1865. From this point it proceeded to Washington, D. C., via Petersburg and Richmond and took part in the grand review of Sherman's army May 24.

Leaving their guns at Washington, the officers and men of the Battery started for Detroit, Mich., where they were paid and disbanded the 14th of June, 1865.

During its service it had been engaged at Pittsburg Landing, Tenn., April 6, 1862; siege of Corinth, Miss., May 10 to 31, 1862; Corinth, Miss., Oct. 3, 4, 1862; Resaca, Ga., May 9, 1864; Lay's Ferry, Ga., May 14, 1864; Calhoun Ferry, Ga., May 15, 1864; Rome X Roads, Ga. May 16, 1864; Cave Springs, Ga., Oct. 13, 1864; Turkey Ridge, Ala., Oct. 26, 1864; Griswold, Ga., Nov. 22, 1864; Ogeechee River, Ga., Dec. 8, 1864; Savannah, Ga., Dec. 11 to 20, 1864; Salkehatchie River, S. C., Feb. 6, 1865; Columbia, S. C., Feb. 15, 1865; Cox's Bridge, N. C., March 29, 1865; Bentonville, N. C., March 21, 22, 1865.

BATTERY C.

Battery C was organized at Grand Rapids and was mustered into service Nov. 28, 1861, with the following officers:

Captain, Alexander W. Dees of Detroit. First Lieutenant, Richard W. Hawes of Buffalo, N. Y. Second Lieutenant, Robert O. Sinclair of Hillsdale, and Second Lieutenant, William H. Sinclair of Jonesville.

The battery left Grand Rapids the 17th of December, and in May, 1862, took part in the siege of Corinth, Miss. It was in active service, taking part in reconnoissances and skirmishes with the army of General Rosecrans until November, when it engaged the enemy at Lumpkin's Mills and at other points in Mississippi, and returned to Corinth in May, 1863.

On the 13th of May it moved to Memphis, Tenn., where it did garrison duty until October, and in November was at Iuka, Miss. In March, 1864, it moved to Decatur, Ala.

The battery took an active part in the Atlanta campaign and was engaged in a number of battles, always with credit to its officers and men, until Atlanta was reached, and then joined in the siege until the city surrendered to General Sherman.

On the 15th of November it commenced the march to the sea and assisted at the siege of Savannah until that city fell into the hands of the Union troops.

January 4, 1865, the battery embarked on transports for Beaufort, S. C., and from that point marched through the Carolinas, coming in contact with the enemy frequently, and arrived at Raleigh, N. C., March 14. From this point it marched via Richmond, Va., to Washington, D. C., where it arrived May 23, and returned to Michigan in June.

The battery was mustered out and disbanded at Detroit, June 22, 1865.

Having been engaged with the enemy while in service at the siege of Corinth, Miss., May 10 to 31, 1862; Farmington, Miss., May 9, 1862; Iuka, Miss., September 17, 19, 1862; Corinth, Miss., October 3, 4, 1862; Lumpkin's Mills, Miss., November 29, 1862; Tallahatchie, Miss., November —, 1862; Town Creek, Ala., April, 1863; Resaca, Ga., May 14, 1864; Dallas, Ga., May 27, 1864; Big Shanty, Ga., June 15, 1864; Kenesaw, Ga., June 25, 1864; Nickajack Creek, Ga., July 1, 1864; Decatur, Ala., July 20, 1864; siege of Atlanta, Ga., July 22 to August 25, 1864; near Savannah, Ga., December 9, 19, 11, 1864; South Edisto, S. C., February 9, 1865; Cheraw, S. C., March 4, 1865; Fayetteville, N. C., March 13, 1865; Bentonville, N. C., March 21, 1865.

BATTERY D.

Battery D was organized at Coldwater and mustered into service Sept. 17, 1861, with the following officers:

Captain, Alonzo F. Bidwell of Coldwater. First Lieutenant, Josiah W. Church of Coldwater. First Lieutenant, James M. Beedle of Union City. Second Lieutenant, Henry B. Corbin of Union City, and Second Lieutenant, William Green of Wayne, Ind.

The Battery left Coldwater December 9, 1861, for Kentucky.

It is to be regretted that the records of the movements of the battery from the time it took the field until June, 1863, were never made, or if they were, failed to reach the Adjutant General's office.

Captain Bidwell resigned August 2, 1862, and the records report that the battery was in command of Captain Church in June, 1863, and the 26th of that month was engaged with the enemy at Hoover's Gap, Tenn.

In September, 1863, the battery was attached to the First Brigade, Third Division, Fourteenth Corps, and left its camp at Winchester, Tenn., August 16, for the Chattanooga campaign. It crossed the Tennessee river the 30th and marched across Lookout Mountain over almost impassible roads to Mc-Lemore's Cove, and then marched to Gower's Ford on the Chickamauga river, where it arrived September 18th.

On the morning of the 19th it took part in the battle of Chickamauga, changing position a number of times and driving back the enemy by double shooting the guns with canister with orders to fire low and rapidly. The following day the battery was attacked by overwhelming numbers of the enemy, and after a most stubborn resistance, with the infantry supports driven back, and a large number of horses killed, the guns had to be abandoned, only one being saved, the others falling into the hands of the enemy.

During the day the pieces had been double shotted with canister, and often the field in front was swept clear by the destructive fire of the battery, but the gaps were closed up and the enemy advancing to the muzzle of the guns, there was no alternative but to retire and save the men from capture.

No battery in that memorable battle was handled more skilfully or did greater execution, but the fortunes of war compelled it to share the fate of other Michigan batteries on that bloody field.

In November the battery was furnished with 20-pounder Parrott guns and stationed in Fort Negley at Chattanooga. It assisted in shelling the enemy on Lookout Mountain, when General Hooker was advancing around its base, and also assisted in the assault on Mission Ridge by bursting its shells in the enemy's entrenchments.

In December the Battery was ordered to Nashville, Tenn., where it remained during the winter. When the army was reorganized by Gen. Grant, Captain Church was promoted Major and was assigned to the command of five batteries in the reserve artillery. Lieut. H. B. Corbin was promoted Captain of Battery D.

In March, 1864, the Battery was at Murfreesboro, Tenn., and remained there until the following December, when it was engaged with General Hood's forces in his advance upon Nashville.

Captain Corbin having been mustered out February 8, 1865, Lieut. Jesse B. Fuller was promoted Captain the same day and returned with the Battery to Jackson, Mich.; July 22, where it was paid and disbanded Aug. 3, 1865.

It had been in engagements at Hoover's Gap, Tenn., June 26th, 1863; Chickamauga, Ga., Sept. 19, 20, 1863; Chattanooga, Tenn., Nov. 23, 24, 1863; Mission Ridge, Tenn., Nov. 25, 1863; Murfreesboro, Tenn., Dec. 12 to 16, 1864.

BATTERY E.

Battery E was organized at Marshall and was mustered into service Dec. 6, 1861, with the following officers: Captain, John H. Dennis, of Grand Rapids. First Lieutenant, John G. Ely of Grand Rapids. Second Lieutenant, Jerome Burns of Marshall, and Second Lieutenant Peter De Vries of Adrian.

The Battery left Marshall Dec. 17, 1861, for service in the western department and was engaged at Pittsburg Landing, Tenn., in April and in September at Fort Riley, Tenn. In November, 1862, it went into garrison at Nashville, Tenn., and was ordered to Murfreesboro in June, 1863.

It returned to Nashville again in September, where fifty-seven of the men re-enlisted and went home on veteran furlough.

In July, 1864, one section accompanied General Rosseau in his march into Alabama and Georgia.

In December the Battery helped to defeat General Hood in his attack upon Nashville and pursued the Confederates upon their retreat.

The Battery remained at Nashville until Feb., 1865, when it was ordered to Decatur, Ala., for garrison duty.

It returned to Michigan July 16 and was paid and disbanded at Jackson, July 30, 1865.

It had encountered the enemy while in service at Pittsburg Landing, Tenn., April 7, 1862; Fort Riley, Tenn., September 20, 1862; Coosa, Ala., July 15, 1864; Cheraw, Ala., July 20, 1864; Nashville, Tenn., December 12 to 16, 1864.

BATTERY F.

Battery F was organized at Coldwater and was mustered into service January 9, 1862, with the following officers: Captain, John S. Andrews, of Coldwater. First Lieutenant, Luther F. Hale of Coldwater. First Lieutenant, Norman S. Andrews of Three Rivers. Second Lieutenant, George B. Tyler of Coldwater and Second Lieutenant Henry A. Hutson.

The Battery left Coldwater March 3, 1862, and went into garrison at West Point, Ky.

Its first engagement with the enemy was at Henderson, Ky., June 30. At Richmond on the 29th and 30th of August a severe encounter took place and the Battery was so unfortunate as to be surrounded by the enemy in the absence of proper infantry support and all of its guns were captured and more than 50 men taken prisoners.

Captain Andrews resigned Dec. 5, 1862. Captain Hale was promoted to Major and the Battery in December was in command of Lieutenant Brown.

In January, 1864, in command of Lieutenant Holbrook, the Battery made a long and toilsome march across the Cumberland Mountains to Knoxville, Tenn. It was in garrison duty here until April when it was assigned to the Second division of the Twenty-third Corps.

Fifty of the men re-enlisted in January and went home on veteran furlough. Lieutenant Byron D. Paddock was commissioned Captain September 1, 1863, and under his command the Battery joined General Sherman's army on the Atlanta campaign in May, 1864. It was engaged almost daily with the enemy and helped to drive the Confederates from their works at Resaca, Ga., Kenesaw Mountain, Marietta, and at the Chattahoochee river. It was one of the first batteries to enter Decatur, Ga., when it took possession of the Georgia Central railroad.

It steadily pressed forward upon the Confederates lines around Atlanta and had the honor of throwing the first shell into that city. After the surrender of Atlanta, when General Hood commenced his march north, Battery F was with the Twenty-third Corps in opposing General Hood's advance.

The Battery in December was near Columbia, Tenn., and found a portion of General Hood's forces was between the Battery and Nashville, so a long detour had to be made to avoid the enemy and it was successfully accomplished, the Battery marching 60 miles in 36 hours and arrived at Nashville safely December 8. It served in the army of General Thomas when he defeated General Hood before Nashville from the 12th to the 16th of December.

In January, 1865, the Battery with the Twenty-third Corps, proceeded to Washington, D. C., where it was placed upon transport at Alexandria, Va., and reached Newbern, N. C., on the 26th of February.

It marched by the way of Wise's Forks, Va., when it had an encounter with the enemy and then to Kingston and on the 21st of March reached Goldsboro, N. C., to co-operate with General Sherman's army, then marching through the Carolinas.

After the surrender of General Lee to General Grant and General Johnson to General Sherman, the Battery proceeded to Michigan, and arrived at Jackson June 24, and was paid and disbanded July 1, 1865.

Having during service been engaged with the enemy at Richmond, Ky., 1862; Resaca, Ga., May 12, 1864; Lost Mountain, Ga., June 9, 11, 14, 1864; Moss House, Ga., June 22, 1864; Kenesaw, Ga., June 24, 1864; Marietta, Ga., July 1, 1864; Chattahoochee River, Ga., July 8, 1864; Decatur, Ga., July 18, 19, 1864; Atlanta, Ga., July 21, 1864; Utoy Creek, Ga., Aug. 4, 1864; siege of Atlanta, Ga., July 20 to August 25, 1864; Nashville, Tenn., December 12 to 16, 1864; Wise's Forks, N. C., March 10, 1865.

BATTERY G.

Battery G was organized at Coldwater, and was mustered into service Jan. 17, 1862, with the following officers:

Captain, Charles H. Lanphere. First Lieutenant, Edwin O. Lanphere. Second Lieutenant, James H. Burdick, and Second Lieutenant, Robert M. Wilder, all of Coldwater.

The Battery left the state February 12, 1862, and proceeded to Louisville, Ky.

In April the Battery proceeded to Cumberland Gap, Tenn., and in September was at Gallipolis, Ohio. During these marches it met and engaged the enemy at Tazewell, Tenn., and Caney Bottom, Ky.

In November the Battery started for Gauley Bridge, W. Va., and from that point returned to Point Pleasant, where it embarked upon transports for Cincinnati, Ohio. At Cincinnati it re-embarked for Memphis, Tenn., and thence proceeded to the Yazoo river, Miss.

The Battery had a severe engagement with the enemy at Chickasaw Bayou, Miss., December 28 and 29, sustaining a loss of 10 wounded. In January, 1863, the Battery moved to Arkansas Post and then to Vicksburg, Miss.

In April it embarked upon transports and ran the blockade at Grand Gulf and landed at Bruinsburg. It participated in General Grant's advance upon Port Gibson and sustained a loss of 2 killed and 2 wounded on the 1st of May, and was engaged in the battle of Champion Hill the 16th and 17th, driving the enemy across Black River Bridge.

It then advanced upon Vicksburg and took part in the siege of that place until General Pemberton surrendered to General Grant, July 4.

Immediately upon the surrender of Vicksburg the Battery took part in the advance upon Jackson, Miss., and drove the enemy from their works.

After Jackson was evacuated the Battery returned to Vicksburg, and in August proceeded to Carrollton, La. It embarked at New Orleans Nov. 13, 1863, for Brazos Santiago, Texas, and arrived at Aransas Pass the 20th. It immediately marched to Matagorda Island, and January 4, 1864, proceeded to Indianola, where it remained until May.

It embarked again upon transports for New Orleans, and arrived at Carrollton, La., June 19th.

In October the Battery embarked for Fort Morgan on Mobile Bay.

In April, 1865, it was engaged in the siege of Mobile, and remained there until July 19, when it proceeded to Michigan and was paid and disbanded at Jackson August 6, 1865.

While in service it had encountered the enemy at Tazewell, Tenn., 1862; Caney Bottom, Ky., 1862; Chickasaw Bayou, Miss., December 28 and 29, 1862; Arkansas Post, Ark., January 6, 1863; Grand Gulf, Miss., April 28, 1863; Fort Gibson, Miss., May 1, 1863; Champion Hill, Miss., May 16, 1863; Big Black River, Miss., May 17, 1863; siege of Vicksburg, Miss., May 19 to July 4, 1863; Jackson, Miss., July 11 to 18, 1863; Fort Esparanza, Texas, November 29, 1863; Mobile, Ala., April 10, 1865.

BATTERY H.

Battery H was organized at Monroe, and was mustered into service March 6, 1862, with the following officers: Captain, Major F. Lockwood of Spaulding. First Lieutenant, Augustus Spencer of Port Huron. First Lieutenant, Wilson H. Whisson of Detroit. Second Lieutenant, Theodorus W. Lockwood of Pontiac, and Second Lieutenant, Stephen P. Savory.

The Battery left Monroe March 13, 1862, for St. Louis, Mo., in command of Captain Samuel De Goyler, formerly Major of the Fourth Infantry, as Captain Lockwood received a commission in the Ninth Cavalry. Captain De Goyler commanded the Battery until the siege of Vicksburg, Miss., where he was wounded and died Aug. 8, 1863, at his home in Hudson, Mich., from result of his wounds.

From St. Louis the Battery moved to New Madrid, Mo., and took part in the siege of Island No. 10. From this time until the siege of Vicksburg, Miss., in July, the Battery was on active duty in Tennessee and Mississippi, scouting and skirmishing with the enemy and performed efficient service wherever it was.

On May 12 it met the enemy at Raymond, Miss., and repelled a charge of the enemy that received most favorable notice from prominent historians and from the general officers in command.

At Champion Hills in the rear of Vicksburg the Battery was gallantly engaged and arrived before the defences of Vicksburg May 19. It took a prominent part in the siege and met with the loss of 1 man killed and 7 wounded. After the city surrendered the Battery was engaged in a number of expeditions in the surrounding country, and while at Big Black River, 36 members re-enlisted and went home on veteran furlough.

In April, 1864, the Battery moved to Cairo, Ill., and from that point started on the Atlanta Campaign.

During this campaign it came in contact with the enemy in nearly all the prominent battles in which General Sherman's Army was engaged, and in the siege of Atlanta. When General Sherman moved his army south of Atlanta the battle that caused the evacuation of that city was fought at Jonesboro, and Battery H took a prominent part.

After the fall of Atlanta the Battery remained there until September, when it returned to Chattanooga, and in November moved to Nashville.

It was on duty at Nashville until February, 1865, when it returned to Chattanooga. It remained there until July, when it was ordered to Michigan, where it was paid and disbanded at Jackson, July 22, 1865.

During its service this battery had engaged the enemy at Thompson's Hill, Miss., May 1, 1863; Raymond, Miss., May 12, 1863; Jackson, Miss., May 14, 1863; Champion Hill, Miss., May 16, 1863; Vicksburg, Miss., May 18, 1863; siege of Vicksburg, Miss., May 19, to July 4, 1863; Brownsville, Miss., October, 1863; Clinton, Miss., February, 1864; Big Shanty, Ga., June 14, 1864; Kenesaw, Ga., June 27, 1864; Nickajack Creek, Ga., July 5, 1864; Peach Tree Creek, Ga., July 22, 1864; siege of Atlanta, Ga., July 22 to August 25, 1864; Jonesboro, Ga., August 31, 1864; Lovejoy's Station, Ga., September 1, 1864.

BATTERY I.

Battery I was organized at Detroit, and was mustered into service August 29, 1862, with the following officers: Captain, Jabez J. Daniels of Hudson. First Lieutenant, Addison A. Kidder of Hudson. First Lieutenant, Luther R. Smith of Detroit. Second Lieutenant, Lewis R. Gage of Detroit, and Second Lieutenant, Thomas J. Limbocker of Trenton.

The Battery left Detroit December 4, 1862, for Washington, D. C., and immediately joined the army of the Potomac and took part in the spring and summer campaign of 1863 with that army. It came in contact with the enemy frequently, and was in the battle of Gettysburg July 3. It moved with the army of the Potomac until October, when it was ordered to Nashville, Tenn., where it arrived Nov. 12.

In March, 1864, it started on a long march to Whiteside, Tenn., and with a Third division of the Twentieth corps, entered upon the Atlanta campaign.

It was engaged frequently with the enemy in the advance upon Atlanta, at New Hope Church in May and at Lost Mountain, Kenesaw Mountain and Culp's Farm in June, and helped fight the battle of Peach Tree Creek and afterward joined in the siege of Atlanta. After the city surrendered it remained there until November, when it returned to Chattanooga, Tenn.

The Battery remained at Chattanooga until July, when it proceeded to Michigan, and was paid and disbanded at Detroit July 14, 1865.

While in service it was in engagements at Aldie, Va., April 27, 1863; Gettysburg, Pa., July 3, 1863; Cassville, Ga., May 9, 1864; New Hope Church, Ga., May 27, 28, 1864; Lost Mountain, Ga., June 17, 1864; Culp's House, Ga., July 1, 1864; Marietta, Ga., July 3, 1864; Peach Tree Creek, Ga., July 20, 1864; siege of Atlanta, Ga., July 22 to Aug. 25, 1864; Turner's Ferry, Ga., August 29, 1864.

BATTERY K.

Battery K was organized at Grand Rapids and was mustered into service February 20, 1863, with the following officers: Captain, John C. Schuetz. First Lieutenant, Adolph Schill. Second Lieutenant, Christopher Hupert, all of Detroit.

The Battery proceeded to Washington, D. C., and arrived there March 1st. It did garrison duty at Fort Ramsey, and at Upton's Hill, Va., until June, when it went into camp at Camp Barry, D. C., and remained until November, when it was ordered to Nashville, Tenn., where it arrived on the 12th.

From Nashville it proceeded to Chattanooga, and went into garrison at Battery Bushnell.

While on garrison duty the Battery was divided into detachments, during the summer of 1864, and the different detachments served with the 13th New York Battery and Battery I, Michigan Light Artillery, in the gunboat and transport service, and with other organizations of the Twentieth corps.

In March, 1865, the Battery was stationed at Chattanooga, and later moved to Riceville, Tenn., and remained there until July, when it was ordered to Michigan.

The Battery was paid and disbanded at Detroit, July 22, 1865.

BATTERY L.

Battery L was organized at Coldwater with the Ninth Cavalry. It was mustered into service April 11, 1863, with the following officers: Captain, Charles J. Thompson of Detroit. First Lieutenant, Cyrus D. Roys of Hudson. First Lieutenant, Thomas Gallagher of Detroit, and Second Lieutenant, Frederick J. Fairbrass of Hancock.

The Battery left Coldwater May 20, 1863, for Cincinnati, Ohio, and the 13th of June engaged the enemy for the first time at Triplett's Bridge, Ky.

It participated in the Morgan raid, and through Kentucky in July, and the different sections of the Battery did excellent service in driving the confederate raider from the state and assisted in his capture at Salineville, Ohio.

One section was engaged with the enemy at Buffington Island, another helped to prevent Morgan from crossing the Ohio river, and one section was with a detachment of the Ninth Cavalry when Morgan was captured.

The Battery was again united after the capture of Morgan, and marched across the Cumberland Mountains with the army of General Burnside, to occupy Knoxville, Tenn., where it arrived Sept. 3.

It took part in the East Tennessee campaign, moving to Morristown and Bean Station, and suffered the hardships and privations incident to that campaign. After a series of marches in extremely cold weather, and over almost impassible roads, the Battery arrived at Cumberland Gap the 12th of December. At this camp it was impossible to supply the horses with forage as the country had been overrun by both armies and was destitute of supplies of all kinds. The troops being so far from their base of supplies were obliged to provide themselves with rations, as they could not be transported across the mountains, and great privations were endured by the Union forces.

The horses of the Battery had to be sent where forage could be procured, and the men were placed in the forts at Cumberland Gap. It remained here until June, 1864, where it was again furnished with horses and proceeded to Knoxville.

Sections of the Battery were sent out from this point to guard bridges and upon scouts until August, 1865, when it was ordered to Michigan. It was paid and disbanded at Jackson on the 22d of August, 1865.

While in service it had encountered the enemy at Triplett's Bridge, Ky., June 15, 1863; Lebanon, Ky., July 5, 1863; Buffington's Island, Ohio, July 19, 1863; Steubenville, Ohio, July 26, 1863; Salineville, Ohio, July 26th, 1863; Loudon, Tenn., September 2d, 1863.

BATTERY M.

Battery M was organized at Mt. Clemens in connection with the Eighth Cavalry and the organization was completed at Dearborn June 30, 1863, at which date it was mustered into service with the following officers: Captain, Edwin G. Hilliar of Detroit. First Lieutenant, Charles D. Culver of Mt. Clemens. First Lieutenant, August M. Emery of Detroit. Second Lieutenant, George H. Moulton of Coldwater and Second Lieutenant, George A. Sheely of Detroit.

The Battery left Dearborn July 9, for Indianapolis, Ind., as that city was then threatened by the Confederate raider, John Morgan.

The Battery proceeded to Camp Nelson, Ky., and on the 24th of September marched with a division of troops under General O. B. Wilcox for Cumberland Gap.

It took part in the East Tennessee Campaign and was constantly on the march in severe weather and over rough roads until January, 1864, when it was placed in the fortifications at Cumberland Gap.

In April, 1865, the Battery marched to Knoxville, and then proceeded to Strawberry Plains, where it remained until July, when it started for Michigan. It arrived in Jackson July 12, and was paid and disbanded Aug. 1, 1865.

Thirteenth Battery.

The Thirteenth Battery was organized at Grand Rapids, and was mustered into service Jan. 20, 1864, with the following officers: Captain, Callahan H. O'Riordan of Detroit. First Lieutenant, Cuthbert W. Laing of Detroit. First Lieutenant, Charles Dupont of Detroit. Second Lieutenant, George D. Jewett of Grand Rapids. Second Lieutenant, Richard C. Wetherald of Flint.

The Battery left Grand Rapids for Washington, D. C., and arrived February 7. It did garrison duty in the forts about Washington during the year, and in command of Captain Dupont, who had been promoted, took part in the defence of Fort Stevens when attacked by the confederate General Early.

In February, 1865, the Battery was mounted as Cavalry and did active duty in Maryland in clearing that state of guerrillas.

After the assassination of President Lincoln the Battery as cavalry patrolled the roads about Washington and assisted in capturing Harold and Mudd, two of the conspirators.

In June the Battery was dismounted and placed in garrison at Fort Reno. It remained here until the 19th, when it started for Michigan and was paid and disbanded at Jackson July 1, 1865.

Fourteenth Battery.

The Fourteenth was organized at Grand Rapids, and was mustered into service Jan. 5, 1864, with the following officers. Captain, Charles Heine of Marshall. First Lieutenant, James J. Kelley of Kalamazoo. Second Lieutenant, Lee A. Humphrey of Grand Rapids.

The Battery left Grand Rapids for Washington, D. C., Feb. 1st, and was placed on garrison duty in the forts around that city. It took part in the defences of Fort Stevens and Fort Slocum, when General Early's forces attacked the national capitol. For a portion of its term of service it served as heavy artillery with the Twenty-third corps.

It remained in and around Washington until June, when it returned to Michigan, and was paid and disbanded at Jackson July 1, 1865.
