INTRODUCTORY.

The compilation of the military history of each soldier of the Civil War (who was a resident of the State of Michigan at the time he enlisted), for publication and distribution has been the subject of controversy for years. The magnitude of such a work, together with the cost of publication, the exhaustive research required and the amount of clerical services necessary in its compilation, have been large factors in postponing, from time to time, the consideration of the subject.

To comply as far as possible with this demand an admirable history was prepared by Adjutant General John Robertson, a few years ago, entitled "Michigan in the War," and gratuitously distributed through the generosity of the state to the surviving soldiers of the war and to the families of those who perished. But this work was general in character, referring mostly to regimental organizations, and contained the military biography of commissioned officers only.

The enlisted men of the army who endured the hardships and suffered the perils of war considered it due themselves and their children that their names should appear of record in the archives of their country and their services noted, that future generations might know the honorable part their ancestors bore in the memorable conflict known as the Civil War. Such a record will ever be a source of patriotic pride to the soldier who did his duty, whether he served in the ranks or in command of division or corps, and an inspiration to the youth of the country who must in the future assume the civic and military responsibilities of this grand republic.

At the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, Department of Michigan, held at Pontiac, June 11 and 12, 1902, the following resolution was passed unanimously:

"Resolved: That the Department of Michigan, Grand Army of the Republic, in encampment assembled, hereby request of the legislature and the Governor of Michigan that immediate provision be made for the publication of the record of the officers and enlisted men who served from this state during the Civil War, in form substantially the same as those published by other states, notably, New Hampshire, Connecticut and Ohio."

The Department Commander appointed a committee on legislation consisting of C. E. Foote, Kalamazoo, Col. Fred Schneider, Lansing, and Alfred Milnes, Coldwater. This committee drafted the following bill, which was passed by both houses of the legislature in the session of 1903, and was promptly signed by Governor Bliss.

The act is known as Act 147, Public Acts of 1903.

The first three sections of the Act are as follows, and the concluding sections refer to provisions of contracting for publication and auditing accounts.

The People of the State of Michigan enact:

Section 1. The Adjutant General shall, as soon as practicable after the passage of this act, prepare for publication an alphabetical regimental history of all soldiers and sailors who enlisted from and were credited to this state during the war of the rebellion. Such history shall contain the name, residence, date of enlistment, date of muster in, rank, promotion, wounds received, capture and imprisonment by the enemy, date of discharge, muster out or death, and such information as can be obtained from the records of this state; the war, navy and other departments of the Federal Government, or other authentic sources, as will correct or complete the records, making as far as practicable a complete and concise military history of each soldier or sailor so serving; prefacing each volume of such records appropriately, with a concise general history of the organization therein named. He shall direct the preparation and compilation of such records for publication in forty-three, forty-four, forty-five, or forty-six volumes, assigning as far as practicable one volume to each of the following organizations and groups of organizations, viz.: One volume to each regimental infantry organization and reorganization, numbered from First to Thirtieth regiment; one volume each to First regiment of Michigan Engineers and Mechanics, First regiment Michigan Sharpshooters, and First regiment Michigan colored troops; one volume to the fourteen Michigan Batteries of Light Artillery; one volume to Gen. George A. Custer's Cavalry Brigade, consisting of the First, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh regiments of Michigan cavalry; one volume to each of the Second, Third, Fourth, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh Michigan cavalry regiments; and one volume to contain all other miscellaneous organizations and detachments enlisted in this state and serving in Michigan and other state organizations; and one volume to contain a general alphabetical index of all names mentioned in the different volumes constituting the entire edition, showing in what organization or volume each name in the index may be found, for the convenient reference of the public, in library sets, which index volume is herewith limited to two hundred copies. For this purpose the Adjutant General is authorized to employ such extra clerical assistance and procure such blanks and stationery as may be necessary in the preparation, compilation, comparing and proof reading, necessary to secure historical and typographical accuracy.

Section 2. The distribution of said volumes when published shall be made under the supervision of the Adjutant General, in the same general manner now adopted for the distribution of "Michigan in the War," under section three, act two hundred forty-eight, public acts of eighteen hundred eighty-seven. One regimental volume to the applicant of the organization in which he served as follows: Any person who served in any Michigan regiment, battery, company or detachment during the Civil War, and has been honorably discharged, or any person who served in any regiment, battery or company from any other state, or in the regular army, or in the navy, properly accredited to the State of Michigan, and has been honorably discharged, or if such person be dead, then his widow, if living, or if she be dead, then his father, if living; if he be dead, then the mother of any such person, or if she be dead, then to his eldest child, if any there be; and any such person who is still in the service, shall be entitled to receive one copy of said work, on application and identification to the Adjutant General, and if the application for such copy be not made in person by depositing with the Adjutant General necessary postage to cover the expense of sending such book. Also complete sets to adjutants general of other states, and to state and United States public libraries, upon application, and to such other libraries in this state as the Governor may approve, and may be purchased by any other persons who may apply at cost of publication.

Section 3. So soon as the work of preparation and compilation of the historical records herein provided for shall have progressed sufficiently near completion to enable printers and binders to make accurate estimates of the cost of publication, the Adjutant General shall serve a written notification of that fact on the Board of State Auditors; upon such notification, at the earliest practicable moment, the Board of State Auditors is hereby directed to solicit sealed bids for the publication, printing and binding of forty-five thousand volumes of "A Record of Michigan Soldiers and Sailors in the War of the Rebellion, Eighteen Hundred Sixty-one to Eighteen Hundred Sixty-five," and give public notice of the time and place for receiving such bids and the requirements of the contract in accordance with this act by publishing the same in such paper or papers, and for such a period as will in the judgment of the board bring the subject to the attention of the several prominent publishing houses in this state: Provided, That the cost of such work complete shall not exceed fourteen thousand dollars for the printing, binding and delivery of the entire edition herein provided for; and the standard of excellence in quality of material, style of binding, typography and style of printing shall be equal to that used by the state of Massachusetts in its recent publication of "Massachusetts' Soldiers and Sailors of the Revolutionary War," copies of which are now on file in the Adjutant General's office of this state: Provided, further, That the apportionment of the copies of the different regimental volumes of the edition of forty-five thousand volumes herein provided for, shall be in the same relative proportion as the total enrollment of the organizations represented in any single volume bears to the total enrollment of the entire edition as provided for in this act; for which purpose the Adjutant General shall direct the preparation of, and furnish the Board of State Auditors with a comprehensive table of data, showing the total enrollment of the organization, and the total number of printed pages intended for each volume, and the apportionment of the total number of copies to each of such volumes, for the guidance of bidders for the contract of publishing such work.

Immediately upon the approval of the act by the Governor, the Adjutant General commenced active preparations to compile the work as provided for in the bill. No state has been more generous than Michigan in trying to secure full and complete historical military data of her sons, who patriotically volunteered to defend the integrity of their country, and probably the records in the military department are as accurate and complete as any like records of any state in the Union. Yet with all the care and research that has been made, there are individual histories that are deficient in some particulars, owing to the fact that the returns from which they were copied were written in the field during active and protracted campaigns, when great battles were fought, and the movement of troops continued incessantly night and day, circumstances incompatible with accuracy, completeness and legibility, and by officers who succeeded suddenly in command by the death of their predecessors. The greater number who possessed the information desired have been removed by death, and their silent lips can never complete the unwritten history of their comrades.

It was sometimes impossible in the stirring times of war for commanding officers to give authentic and final history of men who disappeared in a great battle, as in many cases the bodies of the dead could not be found, and if possession of the field was yielded to the enemy the fate of those who were made prisoners of war could only, if ever, be learned through unreliable Confederate sources.

For such heroes who died for their country and who sleep in nameless graves their epitaph is inscribed in this history as "Missing in action." A more honorable or heroic epitaph could not be penned. Thousands of the Union dead have been removed by the Government from the field where they fell, and their bodies have been placed in national cemeteries, beautified and adorned, as the mausoleum of the nation's defenders, with appropriate monuments at their resting places.

In order to complete some of the records of the Adjutant General's Office, which is the custodian of all the field returns of the Civil War, Governor Bliss made a request of the Secretary of War, seconded by Senators Burrows and Alger, asking that the incomplete, individual records of this office be completed, upon presentation by the Adjutant General, provided the War Department was in possession of the facts desired. For reasons which seemed sufficient to the Secretary of War, the request was denied.

To supplement the records of this office so as to make each individual history complete as far as possible, blanks were prepared and sent to all the Grand Army Posts of the state, with the request that the names of all Michigan soldiers in the Post and vicinity be returned to the Adjutant General, stating the residence, if living; and, if dead, the date of death and place of burial.

Three hundred out of the three hundred and sixty Posts of the state responded, and the data gathered from these reports have been added to the official history shown by the records of this office. Without doubt there are some inaccuracies in these reports, but the majority of them are correct and will enable many ex-soldiers to locate their comrades, if living, and to know their resting places, if dead.

A request was also made of each superintendent of the eighty national cemeteries to forward to the Adjutant General the names of all Michigan soldiers buried in such cemeteries. A gratifying response was received, and these reports have been carefully compiled and added to the history of the soldier. These reports of the superintendents of national cemeteries tell a mournful story. The superintendent of the National Cemetery at Andersonville, Ga., reports the names of six hundred and forty-seven Michigan soldiers buried there, victims of Andersonville prison. There is scarcely a national cemetery in the United States that does not contain the bodies of Michigan soldiers, and a number of them as many as the cemetery at Andersonville, Ga.

Near the close of the war there were many recruits at depots awaiting transportation to join regiments at the front, but when it was found their services would not be needed, many returned home without the formality of a muster out, and their final disposition was incomplete, and in many such cases shows "no further record."

In the compilation of this work no pains have been spared and no research of the almost numberless field returns made forty years ago, has seemed too arduous to make the soldiers' record absolutely complete if there were material existing to make this possible. That inaccuracies will appear is unavoidable from the nature of the work. The inaccuracies are not the result of careless clerical work in the Adjutant General's office, but are due to the hasty compilation of returns in the field, where names were misspelled and where the name of a soldier is spelled differently in the muster-in and muster-out rolls.

In cases where the name could not be verified as the correct one both are published. When inaccuracies appear in the record, if the soldier will send his discharge papers to the Adjutant General, the corrections will be made in the official records of the office and the discharge papers promptly returned. It scarcely occurred to the officers who made their official returns to the different departments that forty years after the conflict, an individual history of each soldier who participated would be written. Had such been known then, the meagre and scant accounts of skirmishes, battles and sieges—many of them destined to be of world-wide fame—would have been extended and written out fully, giving a comprehensive history of individuals, companies and regiments, a history that would be a priceless heritage today and to future generations.

The hardships of a campaign, the duties exacted night and day, the constant attention to matters of vital importance, are not conducive to literary efforts of biography or general history. It is pathetic to know that thousands upon thousands of Union soldiers who participated in many of the most desperate battles of the Civil War, have no records of such battles to their credit in the official reports. A limited number were fortunate enough to have their names recorded by their officers as participating in such engagements.

Whenever the official records have mentioned the battles in which the soldier fought, or wounds that he received, or promotions made, or any gallant and meritorious service, such record has been carefully noted and attached to the soldier's history. At the commencement of the work it was found that many soldiers saw service in more than one regiment, and as the appropriation contemplated but one volume to each man, the entire history of the soldier has been compiled under his name and placed in the volume where he served longest. The primary object of the whole work has been to group the comrades who served in the same regiment, with names arranged in alphabetical order, and present him with the volume containing his own military history and the history of those with whom he served.

The soldiers who enlisted for three years and after serving two years re-enlisted in the field for "three years or during the war," have the distinctive and honorable title of "veteran" placed after their names.

Careful enumeration has been made of the total enrollment of each regiment, together with the list of casualties.

The work of compiling these individual histories has been long and arduous, but it has been one of gratification and satisfaction to record the gallant deeds of Michigan men who contributed so gloriously to the unity and perpetuity of the Union.

Sixteenth Infantry.

The Sixteenth was organized at Detroit and was originally known as "Stockton's Independent Regiment," as it was organized by Colonel Thomas B. W. Stockton of Flint; but it was afterward given the numerical number of the Sixteenth. It was mustered into service Sept. 8, 1861, with an enrollment of 761 officers and men.

The field, staff and line officers at organization were as follows:

The field and staff of the regiment was made up of Colonel Thomas B. W. Stockton, Flint. Lieutenant Colonel, John V. Reuhle, Detroit. Major, Norval E. Welch, Ann Arbor. Surgeon, Isaac Wixam, Fentonville. Assistant Surgeon, William H. Butler, Buffalo, N. Y. Chaplain, William H. Brockway, Albion. Adjutant, Thomas E. Morris, East Saginaw. Quartermaster, Miner S. Newell, Flint.

A. Captain, Thomas S. Barry, Detroit. First Lieutenant, George H. Swan, Detroit. Second Lieutenant, George Prentiss, Detroit.

B. Captain, Henry H. Sibley, Ionia. First Lieutenant, Guy W. Fuller, Ionia. Second Lieutenant, Morris B. Wells, Ionia.

C. Captain, Thomas C. Carr, Flint. First Lieutenant, Miner S. Newell, Flint. Second Lieutenant, Randolph W. Ransom, Flint.

D. Captain, Benjamin F. Fisher, East Saginaw. First Lieutenant, Theodore S. Mahan, Adrian. Second Lieutenant, Gilbert R. Chandler, East Saginaw.

E. Captain, Robert T. Elliott, Detroit. First Lieutenant, Patrick McLaughlin, Detroit. Second Lieutenant, Charles H. Salter, Detroit.

F. Captain, James Defoe, Plymouth. First Lieutenant, William B. Roe, Plymouth. Second Lieutenant, Solomon P. Brockway, Albion.

G. Captain, George Myers, Detroit. First Lieutenant, Jacob Webber, Lansing. Second Lieutenant, Frank Eddy, Flint.

H. Captain, Stephen Martin, Detroit. First Lieutenant, Thomas F. Hughes, Detroit. Second Lieutenant, John Long, Detroit.

I. Captain, Judd M. Mott, Alburg, Vt. First Lieutenant, Benjamin F. Partridge, Bay City. Second Lieutenant, ———.

K. Captain, Gustave Kast, Detroit. First Lieutenant, Lewis Webster, East Saginaw. Second Lieutenant, Edward Hill, Detroit.

The regiment left Detroit Sept. 16, 1861, for Washington, D. C., to join the army of the Potomac. It went into camp at Hall's Hill, Va., for the winter of 1861-2.

In February, 1862, a company was recruited at Detroit known as "Dy-gert's Sharpshooters," as it was organized by Captain K. S. Dygert. On the records of the Adjutant General's office the company is designated as the first independent company of sharpshooters attached to the Sixteenth Infantry and the company served with the regiment until the close of the war.

The Sixteenth took part in the Peninsular campaign under General McClellan and formed a part of the Third Brigade, First Division, Fifth Corps, then commanded by Fitz John Porter, and remained a part of the corps during its term of service.

The regiment was at the siege of Yorktown in April, 1862, and participated in the engagement at Hanover Court House, Va., May 27.

June 27th it fought in one of the most desperate battles of the war at Gaines Mills, Va., where it gallantly contested with the enemy for the possession of the field.

The stubborn resistance by the Sixteenth is forcibly illustrated by the casualties, as the regiment lost 3 officers and 46 men killed, 6 officers and 110 men wounded and 2 officers and 53 men missing.

Colonel Stockton's horse was shot under him and he was taken prisoner and sent to Richmond, Va., where he remained until the following August before he was exchanged.

The regiment, under command of Lieutenant Colonel Welch, was engaged at Malvern Hill, July 1, and Aug. 30 participated in the battle of Manassas, where it was exposed to a destructive fire and gallantly fought heavy masses of the enemy with no thought of yielding the field to the Confederates. In this action the Sixteenth met with a loss of 3 officers and 13 men killed, 4 officers and 59 men wounded.

The regiment, in command of Lieutenant Colonel Welch, Colonel Stockton having been exchanged and assigned to the command of a brigade, entered upon the Maryland campaign and was at Antietam, Md., Aug. 17, though not engaged. Immediately after the battle the Sixteenth joined in pursuit of the retreating Confederates and pushed them across the Potomac.

The regiment was at Harper's Ferry Nov. 1 and marched to the Rappahannock and crossed that river at Falmouth and participated in the battle of Fredericksburg, where it met with considerable loss. After a series of marches it was engaged at Chancellorsville and took an important part in that disastrous battle, but held the ground it was assigned to hold though repeatedly charged by the enemy.

At Middleburg, Va., June 21st the regiment fought a spirited engagement, following and driving the enemy for thirteen miles, and went into camp at the close of the day's operations near Upperville.

Colonel Stockton resigned May 8, 1863, and Lieutenant Colonel Welch was commissioned Colonel May 18. Under his command the regiment entered upon the Pennsylvania campaign and fought in the historic battle of Gettysburg, adding a world-wide fame to its laurels in the defense of Little Round Top. This important position was considered by the commanders of both armies to be one of vital importance and was unoccupied until General Warren detached Vincent's brigade, which was marching with its division to the support of Birney in the Peach Orchard.

The Sixteenth was in Vincent's brigade and at once commenced the ascent of the rocky mount at the same time Hood's Texan troops commenced the ascent on the opposite side. With almost superhuman efforts Hazlett's battery was dragged by hand up the rugged side of Round Top. On the bare summit detached rocks were thrown together for protection against the storm of shot and shell that was crashing with awful destruction in and around the four regiments that had gained the eminence.

As the enemy climbed by desperate methods toward the summit he was met in a hand to hand struggle with bayonet and clubbed muskets and a most terrific and bloody encounter took place. Simultaneous volleys of musketry were poured into the faces of the assailed and assailants. Hazlett's battery belched forth in a blaze of fire its death laden shot and shell. When the fearful cry arose that the ammunition was exhausted, the grim and smoke blackened Union troops grasped their muskets and with flashing bayonets charged the foe down the rocky and torn side of the hill, driving them into the gorges behind Devil's Den, and the key to the battle line was saved to General Mead's army. No more desperate fighting occurred during the Civil war, nor was greater heroism shown on any field than was shown by the Union troops who fought and saved Little Round Top.

After the battle of Gettysburg the Sixteenth started on the 5th of July in pursuit of the retreating enemy and crossed the Potomac at Berlin on the 17th. It was constantly on the march, skirmishing and fighting and participating in the different movements with the Army of the Potomac, the months of August, September and October, and during the year marched 800 miles.

At Kelley's Ford on the Rappahannock the Sixteenth demonstrated its gallantry again under fire and after capturing the enemy's works remained at the Ford until Nov. 26.

In December 294 members of the Sixteenth re-enlisted and the regiment returned to Michigan on veteran furlough. It reassembled at Saginaw and on the 17th of February, 1864, joined its brigade in the army of the Potomac.

It was in winter quarters at Bealton Station, Va., until May 1 and the 6th and 7th of the same month participated in the battle of the Wilderness, where it lost thirty-five killed and wounded.

The regiment participated in all the movements in this campaign with its corps, meeting the enemy at Spottsylvania and at other places during the flanking operations of General Grant's army. Crossing and re-crossing the North Anna river and then marching rapidly upon Hanover town.

A company of sharpshooters was recruited at Detroit and mustered into service May 3, 1864, and was known as "Jardine's Sharpshooters," as it was organized by Captain George Jardine, and was designated as the second company of sharpshooters attached to the Sixteenth Infantry.

In June the regiment was constantly skirmishing with the enemy and during the 2d, 3d and 4th was engaged at Bethesda Church. From this point it moved to Cold Harbor and crossed the Chickahominy at Long Bridge. It crossed James river Aug. 15 and took part in the siege of Petersburg.

At Peebles farm on Sept. 30th the regiment distinguished itself with the same spirit of gallantry that actuated its members at Little Round Top.

In a charge upon the enemy's works the Sixteenth had the center of the line and Colonel Welch was one of the first to reach the entrenchments, but was instantly killed at the moment he mounted the parapet. The regiment lost 10 killed and 42 wounded before the works were in the possession of the Union troops.

The Sixteenth took part in many of the movements of the Fifth Corps in the vicinity of Petersburg during the siege. Feb. 7, 1865, it was engaged with the enemy at Dabney's Mills and on March 25th at Hatcher's Run, at White Oak Swamp the 29th, at Quaker Road the 31st and at Five Forks April 1. It followed the Confederate army when General Lee retreated from Richmond and came in contact with the enemy frequently until the surrender at Appomattox April 9.

In May the regiment took up its line of march for Washington, where it arrived on the 12th and participated in the grand review with the army of the Potomac May 23.

June 16th the regiment was ordered to Louisville, Ky., where it arrived on the 21st.

It was mustered out of service at Jeffersonville, Ind., July 8 and returned to Michigan. It arrived at Jackson on the 12th and was paid and disbanded July 25, 1865.

The regiment while in service took part in engagements at siege of Yorktown, Va., April 4 to May 4, 1862; Hanover Court House, Va., May 27, 1862; Mechanicsville, Va., June 26, 1862; Gaines' Mills, Va., June 27, 1862; White Oak Swamp, Va., June 30, 1862; Turkey Bend, Va., June 30, 1862; Malvern Hill, Va., July 1, 1862; Harrison's Landing, Va., July 2, 1862; Ely's Ford, Va., Aug. 29, 1862; Bull Run, 2d, Va., Aug. 30, 1862; Antietam, Md., Sept. 17, 1862; Shepardstown Ford, Va., Sept. 19, 1862; Snicker's Gap, Va., Nov. 4, 1862; Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 13, 1862; U. Camp of Sixteenth Michigan Volunteer Infantry, near Beverly Ford, Va.

Lieutenant Colonel Fred T. Locke,

Assistant Adjutant General, Fifth Army Corps.

Colonel:—

We take this method of bringing before you the case of Alexander Cameron of the Sixteenth Michigan Volunteers. Alexander Cameron came into the regiment as a Sergeant on the regiment's first formation and received his commission as Second Lieutenant upon the 24th day of May, 1863, before the order making an examining board requisite was issued. Owing to his being detached from his regiment for a long time on special duty, and the active movements of the army for the past three months, he has never been examined, and consequently not mustered into the service as a commissioned officer. He led his company manfully and nobly into the battle of Gettysburg, when he lost his right arm and received a severe wound in his side. He is now in the hospital and consequently unable to comply with the order in reference to enlisted men being examined by an examining board prior to being discharged for promotion. He is a man who, by education, by soldierly bearing, by manly conduct in camp and by generous sacrifice of blood and limb, is in every way worthy of having a commission in his country's service, and we, the officers of the Sixteenth Michigan Volunteers, attest his merit and would gladly see him bearing such. We would therefore respectfully solicit that he may receive his discharge without the preparatory examination, if it will be compatible with the interests of the service.
