The Student Transcript and Academic Record Repository (STARR) Collection will close at 11:59 p.m. EDT Friday, October 14, 2015.

The Center for Educational Performance and Information (CEPI) greatly appreciates the work of institutions of higher education (IHEs) to meet this deadline. Many IHEs have already submitted files and successfully completed their submission. Remember, you are not done until you certify your collection.

CEPI will be taking a final snapshot of all data that was submitted on Monday, October 17, 2015 and data quality emails will be sent by Friday, October 21, 2016. The post-collection data quality will identify anomalies that may require a correction to your data. The post-collection data quality may include all of the issues also identified in the mid-collection analysis.

If your institution finds that any data corrections are necessary, a special request to re-open your STARR Collection for data correction is required. The re-open window will begin on Monday, October 24, and all corrections to data should be made by Friday, October 28.
