1. The first part of the report is a general statement of the purpose of the study, which is to determine the effect of the new teaching method on the students' learning outcomes. This is followed by a brief description of the study area and the participants involved.

2. The second part of the report is a description of the research methodology used in the study. This includes a detailed explanation of the experimental design, the data collection methods, and the statistical analysis techniques employed.

3. The third part of the report presents the results of the study. This section includes a table showing the mean scores of the students in the experimental and control groups, and a graph illustrating the distribution of the scores.

4. The fourth part of the report is a discussion of the findings of the study. This section includes a comparison of the results with the previous studies, and a discussion of the implications of the findings for the teaching practice.

5. The fifth part of the report is a conclusion, which summarizes the main findings of the study and provides recommendations for further research.
